"People sometimes ask me why I spell my name with two 'n's," said Representative Hermann. "When I was a student in Maryland years ago, I got the idea into my head that I would follow the fashion and eliminate the extra letter. I started in by writing to my father, a respected and prominent physician in Baltimore, and signing it in the improved way. 'Your affectionate son, Binger Herman.' My father quickly detected the change, and back came a letter where earnest reproofs I have never forgotten.

He pointed out that the name stood for one of the greatest heroes of antiquity, Armenius, the Hermann of Tacitus, who stood like a bulwark against Roman hosts of conquest, and to whose leadership the ancient Germans owed the preservation of their nationality, their language and their freedom. He said that name was given me by those who alone had the authority to confer it, and with their consent the name should never be altered, even in respect to a letter. The rebuke I received so impressed me that I concluded if the name was good enough for my father it would be good enough for me." — Washington Post.

John Can... For Suspicion

"John," exclaimed the nervous woman, "do you think there is a burglar in the house?"

"Certainly not. Why, I haven't heard a sound all night."

"That's just what alarms me. Any burglar who wasn't foolish would keep perfectly quiet so as not to excite our suspicions. Indeed, John, I do so wish you would get up and look through the house!" — Washington Star.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

The Gallery Gods' Applause.

Lawrence Barrett once told me of a conversation he had with Edwin Booth. The latter had been congratulated upon an ovation given him by a crowded house on the opening night of an engagement. "The sweetest music to my ears," said the great tragedian, "is the shouting of the boys in the gallery. I know they are not applauding because I have a reputation or because they wish to make a display. They simply give vent to their natural enthusiasm. When they shout, I know that I am giving a good performance. As for the parquet, it may clap its hands out of politeness. A dramatic critic who had certain notions as to how a line should be read will applaud if I read it his way; otherwise he will remain quiet. I can never analyze the applause of the front rows, but the gallery is sincere in its likes or dislikes." —Chicago Record.

John Henry pleaded with Anella, And all his passion tried to tell her. She said, "John H., your words you waste, Your teeth betray a want of taste, Your breath offends me, so I say, Use SOZODONT or stay away."

THOSE WICKED POPULISTS.

Those Populists in the Senate are very wicked fellows. One of them, Allen of Nebraska, had the effrontery to offer an amendment to the tariff bill providing for the free coinage of silver. Another of them, Kyle of South Dakota, has proposed an amendment to the Civil Sundry Appropriation bill, providing that any honorably discharged soldier of the Civil War, who is not now the owner of 160 acres of land, may acquire title to 160 acres of land by making application therefor in person at any Government Land office and paying the minimum price of $1.25 per acre.

Such bills as these indicate what those terrible Populists would do if they had the power. Without fear of the gold trust they would pass a bill for the coinage of silver on an equality with gold, as had been done from the foundation of the government down to 1873, and they would also pass an act giving every honorably discharged soldier, not now the owner of 160 acres of land, the privilege of acquiring title to that much of the public domain at the minimum price.

It is radically wrong to permit those cranks, as they are styled by the organ of the "party of false pretenses," to deceive the people "by such devious ways." What would become of the Lombard and Wall street gang if there were a majority of such men in Congress? Why, they would pass a free coinage bill within a week and give every old soldier the privilege of acquiring title to a quarter-section of the public domain at the lowest price, and thus deprive corporations of an opportunity of gobbling up all the public lands. They should be suppressed at once and if Wall street cannot overcome them by deceptive means and the liberal use of money, force should be used for the purpose.

THE SENATE TARIFF BILL

The Treasury Department estimates of the revenue which will be derived from the tariff bill as amended have been made public. The customs duties will amount to about $163,000,000, and the internal revenue receipts will yield an increase of $56,000,000 over the present law. Of this increase the income tax will furnish $30,000,000, the increased whisky tax $20,000,000, and the tax on playing cards $3,000,000.

The two great sources of government revenue are the duties on imports and the internal revenue tax. The total receipts in 1893 were $885,000,000, of which about $200,000,000 were collected at the custom houses, $160,000,000 from internal revenue, $3,000,000 from sale of public lands, and the balance from miscellaneous sources. The Senate bill will reduce the duty on imports about $40,000,000, and increase the receipts from internal revenue, including the tax on incomes, about $56,000,000.

It is possible that the tariff bill may not become a law. If a free coinage amendment is attached to it in the Senate it may be defeated in the House, and if it should pass both Houses with such an amendment it is doubtful if the President will approve it. If the Republicans did not dishonorably coin worse than they do the tariff bill they would join the silver men in the Senate and House in attaching a free coinage clause to the Wilson bill and sending it to the President. Sherman and Read, who rule the Republicans in Congress with an iron hand, would not consent to such an arrangement as that, and only a few of their partisans, who are not wholly under their control, dare disobey their mandates.

THE VETO SUSTAINED.

The roll call on a motion to pass the Bland-Seigniorage bill over the President's veto in the House of Representatives showed that 130 were in favor of passing the bill, notwithstanding the objections of the President, and that 30 sustained the veto. The Republicans declined to vote, and though two-thirds of those voting favored the passage of the bill the total vote did not make a quorum of the House. On the second roll call the Republicans voted and the result was 144 votes for the passage of the bill and 115 votes to sustain the veto, and as the bill did not receive the necessary two-thirds vote the veto was sustained.

Of the 128 Republicans in the House of Representatives not more than a baker's dozen voted to pass a bill to coin the silver owned by the Government over the President's veto. This is the party which Messrs. Bartine, Fulton, Turrin & Co. tell the people of Nevada is in favor of free coinage. This is the party which differs with the President on tariff schedules, but invariably upholds his financial policy. This is the party which every goldbug in and out of Nevada desires to see in the ascendancy.

No municipal election east of the Rocky Mountains is complete nowadays unless one or more persons are killed. At Kansas City Tuesday the A. P. A.'s and anti-A. P. A.'s had a row in which one man was instantly killed, two men mortally wounded and several others seriously wounded. In Chicago several persons were more or less seriously wounded in election rows, and two of them are believed to be fatally injured. Bullets not ballots seem to determine the result.

THE BRECKINRIDGE CASE.

The Defendant Denies Several of Plaintiff's Allegations.

WORKINGS OF CONGRESS.

Much Property Destroyed by the Pennsylvania Rioters.

THE BRECKINRIDGE CASE.

The Defendant Still on the Stand.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Breckinridge was extremely pale this morning. He denied asking a colored woman at Goldsborough to cook for him after he had married the plaintiff. He had never professed affection for the plaintiff, but was solicitous when he knew she was about to become a mother through him. Went with her to various places for an understood purpose. He had placed his arms about her and kissed her, but both understood perfectly that nothing serious could be attached to the actions.

The plaintiff first mentioned marriage to him in September, 1892. He told her that the disparity in their ages and her relations with Rhodes made marriage impossible. The semblance of a marriage contract before Mrs. Blackburn was only to shield plaintiff.

Wilson asked concerning the distinction between a man and woman from illicit relations.

Breckinridge replied that a man was under obligations to prevent the destruction of a young woman. If he did not he should be punished. He was trying to take his punishment uncompromisingly. He had acknowledged the respectability of complainant to her associates and had complimented her upon her brilliancy.

He denied having placed plaintiff in the care of Mrs. Blackburn. The demonstration before Mrs. Blackburn was intended to deceive her.

Further cross-examination brought out the fact that the certificate of marriage to Mrs. Wing made it appear that the marriage was the Colonel's second. It was really his third. He had asked Dr. Paxton not to make the marriage public, and after his marriage to Mrs. Wing they had stopped at the Hotel Logeren, New York, and had registered Wm. J. Campbell and wife.

Defendant denied saying that he ever intended to marry plaintiff at his first call on Mrs. Blackburn. He thought Mrs. Blackburn confused the first interview with others, and was also confused about some other matters.

When Mrs. Blackburn's statements were read to the effect that on the second visit she told him she was shocked at the engagement and that it was a poor return for all his wife's devotion, he said he failed to remember the expressions.

Breckinridge denied having told Mrs. Blackburn that he ever paid any attention to Mrs. Wing, but had told her he had reports of his engagement to her spread in order to familiarize his family with his idea of marriage, and when Congress adjourned he was going home to arrange for the marriage. Mrs. Blackburn never told him that if his attentions to Mrs. Wing were as represented he was a villain.

RIOTING IN PENNSYLVANIA. Several Persons Killed and Much Property Destroyed.

UNIIONTOWN, Pa., April 4.—The war between the strikers and workmen is on in earnest. A number of serious outbreaks are reported. Andy Miller, a Hungarian, was attacked by fifty rioters and was horribly beaten with clubs and stones and will not live. Trotter was the scene of the wildest disorder. Nearly 600 Hungarians camped there and took possession of the company's ground. The mob was joined by 2,000 men from New Haven, armed with guns, iron bars, picks and stones, and started northward where 450 men are at work protected by armed deputies. At Mayfield & Donnelly's plant they attacked the workmen. Fifteen shots were fired by the deputies when the rioters retired. One striker was mortally wounded. The rioters are preparing for another attack.

Deputies are being sworn in, armed and instructed to shoot to kill. The situation is most critical.

CORNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 4.—The reckless disregard for property manifested by the strikers is occasioning an increased feeling of anxiety in this section. An electric car was attacked last night by a mob of drunken foreigners. No passengers were injured. Telephone lines leading to the works in operation were cut. It was feared that the air fans would be destroyed at the Trotter works or the mine dynamited. The Frick Company has removed all men and livestock. Orders have been issued to tenants of the company houses at Trotter and Liesing to vacate immediately.

The California contingent of the Industrial Army, 498 strong, yesterday morning marched to the 16th street station, Oakland, and tried to get transportation on the Southern Pacific, but were refused.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

The Veto Sustained in the House. WASHINGTON, April 4.—Filibustering was resumed in the House to prevent the unseating of Hilborn (Rep.) of California. The Democrats were several votes short of a quorum.

A quorum was finally secured and Hilborn was unseated by a vote of 170 to 13.

At 4:15 p. m. roll call on the passage of the Bland bill over the President's veto was unexpectedly precipitated in the House amid great disorder.

The vote at the end of the first roll call stood: Yeas, 130; nays, 45. More than two-thirds voted to pass it over his veto. The Republicans did not vote. On the second vote the count stood: Yeas, 144; nays, 115; not the necessary two-thirds. The Republicans voted on the second roll call.

A MOGT MYSTERIOUS VISION:
An Uncanny Dream in Which Major Andre's Fate Was Depicted.

The following instance may serve to strikingly justify Colquhoun's theory that there is an original spiritual energy expressed in dreams which has nothing to do with the state of the body and is beyond the power of the soul when it has been resubjected by the material organization on awaking.

Prior to his embarkation for America at the outbreak of the Revolutionary war Major Andre went to visit a friend, Miss Rebecca Stewart, who lived in Derbyshire. During his stay it was arranged that they should ride over to view the wonders of the famous Peak. It was also Miss Stewart's desire to introduce the major to some friends in the neighborhood, including a Mr. Newton and the curate of the parish, Mr. Cunningham. She had given both these gentlemen notice of her intention, and while awaiting her arrival Mr. Cunningham took occasion to tell Mr. Cunningham of circumstances of a dream he had had the night before, which affected him so that he could not shake off the recollection of it.

He said that he was standing in the midst of a forest that was entirely strange to him. After gazing listlessly around him for a few moments he perceived a horseman approaching at great speed. As the latter came opposite the spot where the dreamer stood three men who seemed to have been lying in ambush sprang from their place of concealment, and seizing the bridle of the horse ordered the rider to dismount. They then carefully searched his person and led him away. The face, figure and bearing of the horseman made so deep an impression upon Mr. Cunningham's mind that he awoke, but falling asleep again presently dreamed that he was one of a throng of spectators near a great city: that he saw the same person he had seen seized in the wood brought out between files of soldiers, who marched him to a gallows and there hanged him. When Major Andre and Miss Stewart arrived, Mr. Cunningham was horror struck to discover in the person of Miss Stewart's friend the very man whose seizure and execution he had witnessed in his dream.

Here was an accurate anticipation of events that actually happened within 13 months from the date of the dream. The capture of Andre, the search of his person for documents that convicted him for acting the part of a spy and his public execution constitute one of the most dramatic episodes of the contest with the mother country. How is it imaginable that so definite a vision of coming events could arise from the influence of any physical condition on the mind of the sleeper? What possible state of the body could confer upon the soul the power to describe future occurrences with such exact fidelity to details? -New York Times.

A Curious Maine Law.
A curious statute exists in the state of Maine, which punishes criminals from the state for transgressing the law there. This may operate well enough for Maine, provided it can be enforced there, but how is it to operate upon the other states of the Union, who are thus converted into a kind of Botany Bay for the reception of Maine's criminals? -Boston Herald.
